

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF MISSISSIPPI
GREENVILLE DIVISION

JAMES ARTHUR SHARKEY

PLAINTIFF

VS.

CIVIL ACTION NO.: 4:18-CV-017-JMV

HUMPHREYS COUNTY, et al.

DEFENDANTS

ORDER EXTENDING THE PLAINTIFF'S DEADLINE TO RESPOND TO THE DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Before the court is defendant's motion [46] for summary judgment. The plaintiff would normally have fourteen (14) days after service of defendants' motion to submit a response. L. U. Civ. R. 7(b)(4). However, because the plaintiff is proceeding without the assistance of counsel, the court holds that he should be allowed twenty-one (21) days from the date of this order to file his response and opposing evidence in accordance with the directives set out below.

Summary Judgment Procedure and Proof

Because plaintiff is proceeding pro se in this action, a brief explanation regarding summary judgment motions is in order.<sup>1</sup> Motions for summary judgment are authorized by Fed. R. Civ. P. 56. These motions permit the court to resolve lawsuits without the necessity of trials if there is no genuine dispute as to any facts which are material and if the moving party [here, the defendants] is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.

Rule 56 provides, in part:

When a motion for summary judgment is made and supported as provided in this rule, an adverse party may not rest upon the mere allegations of denials of the adverse party's pleading, but the adverse party's response, by affidavits or as otherwise provided in this rule, must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial. If the adverse party does not so respond, summary judgment, if appropriate, shall be entered against the adverse party.

Thus, when a defendant files a motion for summary judgment which is accompanied by proper supporting evidence, the court may grant the motion if the opposing party [here, the plaintiff] fails to present evidence which contradicts it. Summary judgment is proper “if the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with affidavits, if any, show there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the [defendants are] entitled to judgment as a matter of law.”<sup>2</sup>

In the usual case, the defendant, who seeks summary judgment, must show by affidavit or other evidentiary materials that there is no genuine dispute as to any fact material to decision of the motion.<sup>3</sup> In order for the court to find there are no genuine material factual issues, the court must be satisfied that no reasonable trier of fact (judge or jury) could have found for the plaintiff or, in other words, that the evidence favoring the plaintiff is not sufficient to allow a reasonable jury to return a verdict for him.<sup>4</sup> To satisfy this burden, the defendant must either submit evidentiary documents that establish that plaintiff cannot prove a material element of his claim, or, if the crucial issue is one for which the plaintiff will bear the burden of proof at trial, point out that the evidentiary documents in the record do not contain sufficient proof of an essential element of the plaintiff's claim.<sup>5</sup>

Once the defendant has carried that burden, however, the burden shifts to the plaintiff to show that summary judgment is not appropriate.<sup>6</sup> The plaintiff cannot discharge this burden by referring to the mere allegations or denials of the defendant's pleadings; rather, he must, either by submitting opposing evidentiary documents or by referring to evidentiary documents already in the record, set out specific facts showing that a genuine issue as to a material fact exists.<sup>7</sup> If the defendants' motion is supported by evidence, the plaintiff cannot discharge his burden by alleging mere legal conclusions; instead, he must present affirmative evidence in order to defeat a properly supported motion for summary judgment.<sup>8</sup> If he is unable to present affirmative evidence with his response to the motion, plaintiff must explain the reasons for his inability.<sup>9</sup>

Where the plaintiff has the burden of proof on an essential element of his case at trial and does not, after adequate time for discovery, make a sufficiently prove the existence of that element, summary judgment may be entered against him.<sup>10</sup> However, Rule 56 does not require that discovery take place before the court may grant a summary judgment.<sup>11</sup> To be entitled to discovery before a ruling on a motion for summary judgment, the plaintiff must demonstrate how additional time and discovery will enable him to rebut the movant's allegation that no genuine issue of material fact exists.<sup>12</sup>

If the court cannot yet rule because supporting or opposing materials are improper, a district court has the discretion to call upon the parties to remedy defects by supplementing affidavits or otherwise.<sup>13</sup> Although pro se plaintiffs are not held to the same standards of compliance with formal or technical pleading rules applied to attorneys, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals has never allowed pro se plaintiffs to oppose summary judgments by the use of unsworn materials.<sup>14</sup> Unsworn pleadings do not satisfy Rule 56(e)'s requirements for summary judgment proof.<sup>15</sup> Therefore, in order for verified pleadings to constitute proper summary judgment proof, they must conform to the requirements of affidavits, that is, 1) they must establish that the person making the affidavit is competent to testify to the matters in question, 2) they must show that the facts stated in the affidavit are based upon his personal knowledge, and 3) they must contain a clear description of factual information that would be admissible at trial, not mere unsupported conclusions.<sup>16</sup> The Fifth Circuit has repeatedly rejected efforts to oppose <sup>18</sup>See Isquith v. Middle South Utilities, Inc., 847 F.2d at 194; Lodge Hall Music, 831 F.2d at 80 (Rule 56(e) requires that summary judgment affidavits be based upon personal knowledge, contain admissible evidence, and affirmatively demonstrate competency of affiant to testify as to matters contained therein).

<sup>19</sup>This means that plaintiff can still provide the Court with affidavits that are proper summary judgment proof, as long as the affidavits contain the following language directly above the signature line: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date).” See 28 U.S.C. § 1746(2).

It is, therefore, ORDERED:

That plaintiff is hereby granted twenty-one (21) days from the date of this order to file his response and proper summary judgment evidence in opposition to defendants' motion for summary judgment.

Finally, on February 28, 2020, the court received, via email, a document titled "MOTION FOR DISCOVERY," which appears to have been forwarded by plaintiff to the defendants that same day. Plaintiff should note, to the extent he seeks any relief from the court, he must file a motion requesting that relief with the Clerk of Court at the following address:
